So many faults—hairpins and hairpins, grumpy, chattering, fretting, and they put up their chin and make their faces often severely shining in themselves. A bouquet put on the far back or spaced over the eyebrows, and the hairpins are so much more brushed up or down showing between the bouquet and the collar; are aware ugly and quite destroy the style of the bouquet. Then a veil worn with a bouquet, for which the bouquet is hidden, hides the hair, trimming with hairless face. The swaddling clothes is a common mistake. Talk is cheap. We're not going to say much. The first reason is that we have not the time. The second reason is that our goods do the talking and that is what has caused the great boom and bustle at the Leading House this fall. Prints and ink talk will sometimes sell goods, but the quality of goods, the right prices and sound business principles must back it up if it is all a waste of time and money.

Our city streets and country roads have been made a thoroughfare with the goods of goods.

CROOKED VOTERS' LISTS.

When such a paper as the Hamilton Hustler, edited and owned by a life long Liberal, Mr. Middleton gets off the following comment on the Local Government's manipulation of the voters' lists in that constituency, there must be something radically rotten in that constituency. We know of registration clerks appointed who would not make a crooked list if they were paid for doing it, and the pity is that all appointments were not such. It is as the Hustler asserts, that this list is the result of Mr. McNaught's personal instruction in then he is more responsible for the crookedness than the clerk. If the government has any desire to do what is right they should give such matters serious attention. No one can blame the government to get all the votes they can get by fair means, on the merits of the government, such as they may be, and through the indifference and apathy of their opponents but it should not be that which is the result of a crooked list. Which side is to be disgraced by every fair minded man, Gent or Tory.

The new voters' lists for the electoral division of Saskatchewan are now printed and have been distributed a copy of which has reached our office. We presume these lists are intended to be used at the coming provincial election and as such the present members Mr. David McNaught and Mr. J. H. McNaught, who are the only two members of the division, are divided so that only three townships are in the constituency, viz. township 14, 15 and 16 range 24 west. We have only taken the trouble to check up the list of these three townships, and find such glaring and serious errors as to the number of electors in each township, that we feel it our duty as a journal to call attention to the facts and expose such apparent crookedness. It is not our intention to discuss the merits or demerits of any political party, but where we find no less than forty-one names in three townships deliberately left off the voters list, many of whom have been residents for years, we must at least inform those people of the fact who are being so unjustly deprived of their franchise. We have been informed that Mr. McNaught visited this part of the division, and left instructions for a full and complete list of names to be sent in and also to mark with an X all names who were not likely to vote, and if they do not appear personally and have their names put on there will be no other redress offered them. We fail to see why any omission should have been made, why not put on every name on the list that is entitled to a vote and give fair play to all parties. In this case we say to every elector, examine the new list and if your name is not on don't fail to appear at the court of revision. Don't miss the last chance of getting your name on the list, then when election comes on exercise your franchise according to your own judgment.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On Monday evening friends and well wishers of E. S. Phillips, late manager of the Merchants Bank, from city and country, to the number of some 75 met in the Langham to bid him farewell before leaving for St. John's, Quebec, where he takes charge of an agency of the same institution. Mr. W. A. Macdonald acted as chairman, and after referring to Mr. Phillips' success as a banker, and to the many responsible positions he held in the city during his residence and his efficient services in them all went on with the proceedings of the evening. First came the toast of "The Queen." After singing "Rule Britannia" by Mr. Irwin, the accompanying address was read by Mr. Henderson solicitor for the bank, and the presentation of a purse containing over $500 and a gold headed cane suitably inscribed the gift of the Masonic Fraternity.

E. S. PHILLIPS, Esq.,
Manager Merchants' Bank,
Brandon, Man.

It is with feelings of the most profound regret that we say tonight as you are leaving. The majority of us have been customers of yours for many years, and have business relations with you; others are mere acquaintances, but share your troubles and well-wishes. In your absence we shall miss your friendly and helpful words, and the assistance of your business relations, and who while attending with unremitting diligence to the interests of the Merchants Bank, has also retained the personal friendship and the regard of his friends and well-wishers.

Your helpful advice will be greatly missed by the Board of Trade and the Hospital, while the curling club and all other many sports will miss your genial presence and fostering care. We can allow this opportunity to pass without expressing our sense of the deep loss we are incurring by the departure from our midst of your esteemed helper. Space will not permit us to tell you the many ways in which you have been so regretted. We can only say to you that we are all very sorry to see you go, and we are all very glad to see you go. In conclusion we ask you to accept this slight token of our esteem, together with our hearty wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

On rising to respond to the address Mr. Phillips said he was never in his life so highly honored before. He duly appreciated the kindness of the donors in this their parting gift. He met with nothing but kindness from his friends in this city in all the capacities he had filled, whether as a bank manager or as one of the citizens in any of the local institutions of the place. He did not feel he was entitled to the honors referred to in the very flattering address, as he had only done his simple duty in any capacity in which he had acted while a resident of the place. Naturally his official duties took up a large portion of his time, and he was, therefore, deterred from doing more than he otherwise would have done, as a citizen had he had more time upon his hands. He was sorry to part the many warm friends he had found in this city, and with the associations he had formed in this progressive country; but bank men were rarely their own masters—they were at the discretion of their institutions. He was going to an older and less progressive town than any in our western country, but would carry with him in fond recollection of the many pleasurable associations he had formed in the west. These he could never forget, and would ever be pleased to see in his new sphere of labor any of his acquaintances in these parts, who when in Montreal could make it convenient to call on him in St. John. He took great pleasure in introducing Mr. McHaffie, his successor, to the customers of the bank in general. They would find him an estimable citizen and a most efficient banker. Again he thanked his friends for their kindness and expressed his deep regret at parting with his many pleasant associations. To call Mr. Phillips, senior, also expressed his deep regret at parting with so many warm friends in Brandon. He was leaving because he could not think of seeing his family separated from him. Then followed speeches from some 20 or more officials and customers of the Merchants' Bank, and other residents all speaking in high terms of Mr. Phillips' services as a banker and a private citizen. The reception lasted over two hours, and only then came to a close to give Mr. Phillips an opportunity to get ready for the early train which he took next morning for this new field of labor.

THE VICE REGAL PARTY.

On Friday last this city was honored with a visit from Lord and Lady Aberdeen. They were met at the station by a number of our most prominent citizens to welcome them. To the town. After taking to the residence of Senator Kirchhoff, the party repaired to the city hall, where the Countess addressed the ladies on the aims and objects of the Women's National Council of Canada. There was a large attendance of ladies present, and as the Countess entered Mrs. Ovas played the National Anthem.

Mrs. McEwen, President of the Women's Hospital Aid Society, presided most efficiently, announcing the presentation by the Chairman of the School Board, Mr. Christie, of the medals awarded by His Excellency to pupils of the school for politeness, and deportment. Mr. Christie before introducing His Excellency to make the presentation referred in fitting terms to the interest His Excellencies always take in educational matters. He then called forward Miss Hilda Hesson, Miss Maude Pilling and Master Sinclair Laughton. Lord Aberdeen in awarding the medals expressed the hope that success of the recipients would lead them on to deserts for further recognition. They were taken by the hands on leaving the platform and congratulated by Their Excellencies on their success.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen then after a few words of introduction of the subject by Mrs. McEwen spoke at some length of the merits of the National Council. Its constitution was outlined, its objects explained at length and its several articles fully commented on, but we regret we had not space for a full report.

His Lordship during the afternoon formally opened the curling rink and showed by his playing that he was an expert at the "Roarin' game."

The Indian school was next visited by Their Excellencies who evinced a deep interest in the institution and its certain results. A visit to the theatre in the evening closed their day in Brandon, they leaving by the early train next morning for Winnipeg.

In Advanced Years

The strength and pure blood necessary to resist the effects of cold seasons are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "I have for the last 25 years of my life been complaining of a weakness of the lungs and colds in the head, especially in the winter. Last fall I was again attacked. Reading of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was led to try it. I am now taking the fifth bottle with good results. I can positively say that I have not spent a winter as free from coughs or pains and difficult breathing as for the last 25 years as was last winter. I can lie down and sleep all night without any disturbance from cough or cold in the lungs or asthmatic difficulty." E. M. CHAMBERS, J. P., Cornhill, N. B.

AN INSTITUTION PATRONIZED BY RICH ENGLISH PEOPLE.

And, I thought, that man, deprived of his walking stick, was moving like a blind man. Having no eyes, he was groping along with his hands, the upsurging little waves of his back with calm dignity, then swayed backward and forward in a slow, rhythmic motion, as if he were expounding a sermon. Then into the courtyard he came and after he had run round and seen the severely deformed nation—bowed as though he was the nation—he looked at me—his eyes

The asses are milked four times a day but during this period the yield is seldom more than a quart. Under favorable conditions the animals give milk for about eight months, so it is to the consumer's advantage to hire an ass at a guma's week, and get all the milk obtainable. This plan is often adopted, but it is a noteworthy fact that the introduction of a milk ass into the household of an aristocratic family is but too often greeted with dependable disfavor and heart burn.

Now, not all expenses have to be paid—and these, you may be sure, are considerable—and the nest comfortably installed in a special out-house, the fittings of which would cause a belated tramp to weep with envy, the momentous question arises: Who is going to milk the animal? You will ask: Is this a momentous question? We rather think it is. We have before us a letter from a certain noble earl, well known in society, who rudely tells us that his servants were so horrified at the thought of milking a donkey that they to his master's class. Again, a lady who took a furnished house in Mount Street noted a gentleman who for three years in order that a quart of Assaf-tida might be sent him daily, "Assaf-tida" being the name in New England of the most inferior of the essences of the daisy; that he later on was found to be a milk-matcher for the bands and competition." In a word, the more one reads, the more one finds that milk is a fact.

As a matter of fact, the varieties of wealth divide and are others who hire and buy milk asses are an extraordinary thing we certainly should hesitate to believe. But the fact is that such a thing has occurred in New York, and it is a fact, as we have plenty of other stories to tell from some of the most aristocratic addresses in Europe.

It is just as well after skimming the door and prancing out of the house to go into a few minutes and leave the house like a gentleman.

They reached the theater early. Very few had arrived. The Rights were few. They sat and talked a while. On she was so happy. Just then the electric lights were turned on to their full power, and she hastily remarked that "she had seen no one bring in more lights," but still she was so happy.

The play began. She sat entranced. To her poor life was the dearest, sweetest good-for-nothing old fellow in the world. When the curtain arose on the fourth act and Mrs. Jefferson had appeared as old Rita

HIS HAIR SEVEN INCHES LONGER.
The Only Change Apparent in a Body
Buried Twenty-seven Years Ago.

Twenty-seven years ago, next November, Harry Wilson, son of John Wilson, who was well known by the older inhabitants of this city, died and was buried in the old cemetery just east of the city, says the Wabash Times. At the time of his

As it was said that young Wilson was different from the famous English, many of the people in the village looked down curses upon the persons that moved his bones, the relatives had superstitious fear of removing his remains a second time. So Tuesday, after lying in the coffin for twenty-seven years, he was taken out.

Quite a number of persons were present at the time, curious to see if the features would still be natural. Upon removing the lid the contents of the coffin were found to be much the same as ever. There the body lay, every feature just as natural as when they were first consigned to dust twenty-seven years ago.

But what was the surprise of those present who knew and saw the body was that it was so much the same as stood from what her sister had said that he had never been naughty in their lives. Probably she was not one of the kind of people who could manage children easily, anyway.

She wished to be as mild as possible with them, so she had them sit one on each side of her while she painted, and they were not to speak a word to each other.

The children sat down very demurely, and seemed disposed to be peacemakers. Harry seemed to think he ought to keep up a conversation with auntie.

"Were you ever in Jerusalem, Aunt Olivia?" he asked.

"No, I never knew any body that was there," replied auntie rather impatiently.

"What is it, dear?" she answered.
 "Auntie, come down, samplin's fell into samplin."
 "All right, in a minute," answered Auntie, and immediately forgot all about it.
 "Auntie," came Polly's voice, again, "please, come down, samplin's fell into samplin."
 "What is it, dear? what has fallen into what?"

The next day being Sunday, Aunt Ollie of course sent them to church, but did accompany them herself, nurse was quite competent to take charge of them, she thought. Harry came back quite cross but Polly was in a gay good humor, due as nurse said, to the fact that she had at

With the limits of whole grain ordinarily available it is not possible to feed a largely grain ration having as narrow a nutritive ratio—as that containing a large amount of whole grain—as a ration of concentrated feeds. It is perhaps necessary for this reason that the nutritive ratio of the best results from laying hens.
5. By using some of the highly nutritive by-products such as cottonseed meal, linseed meal, etc., in a ration of whole grain, it is possible to feed a somewhat narrower ration without feeding an excessive amount of meat.
6. With hens of similar ratios, when the ration is increased and given only the same grain yield as the hens of larger nutritive ratio, the results are about the

It is a bad plan to greedily tell of your boyhood's masculinity, while your children are sitting around. They will never be able to understand why you want to whale them for doing the same thing that now seems so funny to you.

"You observe this plain gold ring on my little finger," said the man from Chicago.

"There's nothing incredible about that," said the officer man, "unless it is the cherry tree. But did I ever tell you the story of my watch? This same watch—" pulling out a gold hunter—"several years ago was drilled a well in the Bradford district and had a cover

"I hadn't finished about my ring," pun in the Chicago man. "We had moved to Iowa, and my wife lost it again. I offered $100 reward for it, but no use. ature, and it is, next spring there will be a demand for cows that will be hard to fill, and only one at a greatly enhanced price. Some say they are going out dairying, although, but these men know little else, and grain raising as a livelihood is foreign to them. Next spring will find them buying cows at high prices, and again the weeding-out process will have to go on for another few years, and more talk will be heard about dairying not paying. Of course there is, as said, a big problem involved on many a farm about entering the stock, but after everything is saved

Inductive Break.

Prof. Lombroso maintains that the knowledge of a criminal phenomenon must be obtained inductive, among the common people, who are far from suspecting even the existence of criminal anthropology, and who get, at the sight of those who bear criminal characteristics, instant ideas which are wholly erroneous and know nothing of the criminality of a realfactor. He was acquainted with a lady whose life was quite withdrawn from society, who one day discovered the criminal characteristics of a man, whom she knew and respected, after he was detected by the police. At his request, schoolmaster have shown to forty young girls twenty
